

My local broadcaster, Airl, does an amazing service to my life. I am able to listen to wholesome music without having to worry about any profanity or immoral conversation like what is exposed on many other radio stations. The music is current and allows me to keep up with what is going on in Christian music today. I am uplifted and encouraged by the discussion, as well as the music. It truly is the positive alternative.

Airl also has an effect on the local community. If Airl were to be displaced by an LPFM broadcaster providing other programming, it would be a discouragement and would restrict our freedom as Christians. I know of many people whose only form of Christian community is through this radio station.

The service provided by Airl is in the public interest because it supports positive values, morals, it supports new growing artists, it exposes the community to another culture that it may not otherwise stumble upon based on their network of friends, and it is the only radio station for those who enjoy upbeat rock music without prophanity and bad morals.
